

Sarah Foubert
HRM
BDO

“We are big enough to count, but small enough to care”

In our sector,” explains Sarah Foubert from BDO, “the consultant is in direct contact with the client. This gives rise to a very specific corporate culture: you have to be very flexible, both in your working hours and in your approach to assignments, since you can’t plan for everything. You also have to be suitably diplomatic and genuinely client-oriented. And obviously, juggling with figures requires careful attention to detail.”

What really sets BDO apart from other players in the sector, however, is its friendly culture in which employees are treated as individuals.

“Communication within the company is open,” comments Sarah Foubert.

“Managers, partners and all employees are equally respected.”

A diploma is certainly important, but enthusiasm and a positive attitude are equally essential. We are looking for applicants for all our departments: company auditors, accountants, tax consultants, legal advisors, consultants for the public sector, risk assurance services and corporate finance.

“If your profile matches this description, go ahead and apply,” recommends Sarah Foubert.
